

What do your genes say about you?

A free educational talk on how your genes affect your health

- What are genes? How do genes affect your risk for developing certain diseases?
- What is genomics? Why should you know about genomics?
- Who should have genetic testing? What will genetic testing tell you about your risk for disease?
- What research opportunities are available to the public?

Presenter: Wendy K. Chung, MD, PhD
Kennedy Family Associate Professor of Pediatrics and Medicine
Irving Institute for Clinical and Translational Research

Date: Thursday, August 4, 2016

Time: 5:30PM – 7:00PM

Location: Columbia Community Partnership for Health
390 Fort Washington Avenue, Ground Floor
New York, NY 10033

- ➔ A free event open to all
- ➔ The talk will be in English and Spanish
- ➔ Refreshments will be served

To RSVP call:
(646) 697-2274